for a sustainable future

At Go Forest, we have a powerful mission – we aim to accelerate the restoration of natural environments by strategically planting trees where they can have a significant impact. We nurture the right trees in the right regions, ensuring they're well-maintained. This benefits not only the environment but also the local communities, creating jobs and improving livelihoods.

Climate change is a daily reality, and we are convinced that planting trees and restoring natural environments are a part of the solution. We recognize that local emissions and consumption cause global consequences, and that's why we plant on a local and a global level. At our planting locations, we collaborate closely with local communities and experts, forging partnerships that create long-term sustainable impacts. Transparency and involvement are at the heart of everything we do. This is how we cultivate environmental, social, and economic benefits for our partners and local communities.

For our customers, planting trees is a tangible way to give back to nature. Our clients vary wildly in size and sector, making big and small contributions but most importantly – we believe these contributions create a ripple effect for change and together we create forest ecosystems.

Our team in Belgium connects clients with projects, while monitoring our projects and the impact made. Our clients can choose the location and project they want to contribute to and purchase a tree or a square meter to be planted. Projects include mangrove-planting, agroforestry, or reforestation while prices vary between € 2,00 and € 5,50 (ex. VAT) per tree. We're dedicated to being an accessible partner and ensuring maximum transparency. Our publicly available impact dashboards allow all clients and stakeholders to monitor the number of trees planted and stay informed about project updates, long after the trees are planted. We are open about all progress and about where there is room for improvement.

Next to project updates, we provide our clients with digital materials to communicate about the projects and regularly help brainstorm about the correct way of communicating. This way, we want to inspire companies and individuals alike to take further action for a greener world.

Whether you're a business leader, part of an association, or an individual seeking to make a sustainable impact, Go Forest is your accessible partner on the journey of inspiring change and giving back to our planet. Let's start planting today! Together, we can grow a forest of change and build a brighter, greener world. Let's make a difference, one tree at a time.
